A FAMILIAR STORY

It is very touching to hear this story recounted many times by different families, in which they tell us about several generations visiting this Nature Center and seeing it as a good place to share with loved ones. These young ladies were introduced to WNNC by their uncle and aunt, and now they are bringing their niece (in the middle) to experience it as they did when they were children, looking to make it a traditional place to learn about nature and to create lasting memories.
